

Compassionate Connection with Photos

A hospital stay can be especially scary: Patients are in a foreign environment, with a virus that didn't exist months ago, without friends and family. The only people they do see is their medical team, who are suited up in head-to-toe protective gear that conceals most of their faces.

Our patients appreciate seeing the real “who” is caring for them! Put photos of yourself on your PPE so patients know they are being cared for by caring human beings.

Humankindness in action!

Photos can be placed in plastic sheet and wiped following appropriate Infection Prevention Practice
